

Behavioral Expectations in Room Seven

Students are expected to:

1. Stay in their seat after the start of the period unless they have permission to do otherwise.
2. Keep hands, feet, and other objects to themselves.
3. Bring all books, sharpened pencils, paper, charged iPads (6-8 only) and necessary materials to class and sit in assigned seats.
4. Not chew, eat, or drink during class except for water in clear containers.
5. Not talk or otherwise disturb the class after the period has begun unless they have permission to do otherwise.
6. Respect the property of Christ the King School and the students using Room 7.

Consequences if Students Choose to Fall Short of Expectations.....

First time	Non-verbal cue. Sometimes there may also be a non-specific verbal cue. (If you have received a specific verbal warning , you are already at step two!)
Second time	Verbal Warning. At times, a general warning may be issued to the entire class.
Third time	Writing assignment determined by teacher. Default assignment is copying these expectations and consequences. You may also be invited to spend break or recess with the teacher.
Fourth time	or flagrant violation: Parents/guardian notified. Detention will be assigned.
Fifth time	or flagrant violation: Parents/guardian notified. Student referred to principal.

These expectations and consequences supplement and support those of the school. Mr. Curry may, at any time, take preventive steps to help students choose well. These steps may include moving the student's seat or asking the student to stand at the back of the room. Remember that steps such as these are only intended to help you meet the expectations of teachers, parents, and administration.

I have read and understand Mr. Curry's Behavioral Expectations and Consequences.
